GENERAL

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is responsible for the administration and enforcement of the Immigration and Nationality Act and related federal statutes. The many and varied functions relate principally to people of foreign birth. This Service is responsible for determining whether persons seeking to enter the United States are citizens or aliens, and if aliens whether they are admissible under immigration laws. A parallel function is that of granting or denying petitions such as those for preferences within quotas, for admission of alien spouses or children of United States citizens, or for importing alien laborers, as well as other applications having to do with entry of aliens into the United States.

Another function of the Service is the administration of the alien registration and the annual alien address report programs.

Citizenship through naturalization is granted or denied by Federal and State courts, but it is the responsibility of the Service to encourage, assist, and facilitate the naturalization of applicants who meet the statutory requirements, and to prevent the naturalization of persons not qualified.

In the field of enforcement, the Service is responsible for preventing illegal entry of persons into the United States and apprehending any aliens found to be in the United States in illegal status; for investigating the status of aliens who, through violation of the provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act, become amenable to deportation or denaturalization; and the detention and the deportation of such aliens.

ADMISSION

Facilitation of Inspection

Citizens returning home and aliens arriving at ports in the United States meet the Service officers who must determine their admissibility at the moment of arrival. To make this first contact as pleasant and as brief as possible, the Service has continued to improve the inspection formalities. At some of our largest airports, port receptionists are on hand to greet and assist arriving passengers.

At international airports in four Canadian cities and at Hamilton, Bermuda, and Nassau, Bahamas, the admissibility of passengers is determined prior to embarkation for the United States. This preinspection abroad makes it possible for passengers to come to the United States secure in the knowledge that they will not be turned back at ports of entry, and that they may proceed on their way promptly.

The inspection of ships' passengers performed en route and completed prior to arrival at the United States port of destination is another important aid to the facilitation of travel, conducted on passenger vessels departing from two major seaports in the Far East. En route inspection is also conducted on some railroad lines operating between Canada and the United States and on certain vessels departing from South American ports destined to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The most important impact on travel during the fiscal year 1962 was the tremendous increase in international jet flights, with their increased carrying capacity (120 to 160 passengers). A total of 6,253,439 passengers arrived in the United States from all parts of the world on 68,828 vessels and 179,648 planes. While the number of arriving airplanes increased only 4 percent over the previous year, the number of passengers increased by 11 percent, reflecting the increased carrying capacity and greater flying range of the jets. In anticipation of changing conditions, the Service made an intensive survey of arrival patterns and, on the basis of the study, staffing schedules were adjusted to provide a flexible force of immigration officers to handle the increased traffic with speed and efficiency.

New facilities at several border ports and at a number of airports, together with revised and streamlined inspectional procedures, have provided more efficient service to the traveler. At the land border ports the inspection for both Immigration and Customs is conducted by a single officer representing both Services. This dual inspection shortens inspection time for the traveler and provides a substantial manpower saving to the Government.

Arrivals

The 173 million entries of citizens and aliens exceeded last year's figures by 3 percent and continued a 21-year trend of growth in inspection. The total number of entries made by aliens during fiscal year 1962 exceeded 99 million. Almost 95 million of these entries were made by border crossers, almost 3 percent more than in fiscal year 1961. An analysis of the other aliens admitted is set forth in detail below.

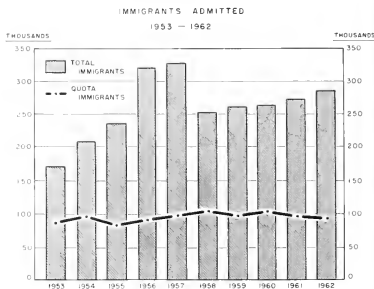

Immigrants. A total of 283,763 aliens became immigrants or permanent resident aliens during the fiscal year 1962, an increase of 5 percent over 1961. Most of these immigrants (264,368) were admitted at ports of arrival. In addition, 19,395 aliens already in the United States became permanent residents through adjustment of their immigration status.

Under the Immigration and Nationality Act, all countries except Western Hemisphere countries are allotted quotas equal to one-sixth of one percent of the number of persons in the United States in 1920 who were of the national origin of the quota area for which the quota is established. Under this formula the total quota is 156,687. Less than two-thirds of this authorized number, or 90,319 quota immigrants, were admitted.

As in past years, the principal reason that quotas used are less than authorized is that Great Britain and Northern Ireland and Eire are allotted 53 percent of the quota numbers under the formula, but in 1962 just 28,811 quota immigrants were admitted from these countries, thus leaving approximately 54,000 quota numbers unused.

First preference within the quota is established for highly skilled persons whose skills are urgently needed in the United States. Under this provision 3,313 highly skilled aliens, accompanied by 3,721 spouses and children were admitted. Of the skilled aliens, 2,480 were from Europe, 487 from Asia, and 166 from Africa and Oceania.

Close relatives of citizens and permanent resident aliens are given preference within the quotas, and 11,729 were admitted with preference visas. People from countries with a large quota waiting list, such as Italy, Poland, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Greece, and Portugal, took most advantage of the preferences for relatives.

Immigrants who come to the United States from countries where there is no pressure for quota numbers usually do not seek preferences within quotas. Therefore, within the 71,431 nonpreference quota admissions are the greatest numbers of British, Irish, and German immigrants.

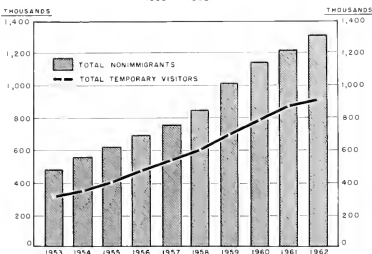

Nonquota immigrants meet all the requirements as to health, moral character, and economic responsibility, but there is no numeric limit on the number of admissions. A total of 193,444 nonquota immigrants were admitted—10 percent more than in fiscal year 1961. This figure included 30,316 spouses and children of United States citizens, as well as 133,505 natives of the Western Hemisphere (chiefly Canada and Mexico) with their spouses and children. Also included were 24,005 other nonquota immigrants who were admitted under special legislation. Of these aliens, 1,809 were admitted under the Act of September 11, 1957, and included 1,316 orphans, 289 beneficiaries of preference quota visas, and 204 refugee-escapees. There were 17,400 admitted under the Acts of September 22, 1959, and September 26, 1961, which provided that certain close relatives of citizens and alien residents of the United States should be admitted as nonquota immigrants, and 4,796 under the Act of September 2, 1958.

Nonimmigrants. Nonimmigrants are aliens admitted to the United States for temporary periods. During fiscal year 1962, 1,331,383 such aliens, exclusive of Mexican agricultural laborers, borders crossers and crewmen, were admitted, a 9 percent increase over the preceding year.

NONIMMIGRANTS ADMITTED

Alien visitors to the United States have an economic value, since they help to reduce imbalance of tourist dollars. Visitors also obtain firsthand impressions that should improve the image of the United States.

The general increase in income level abroad, and the lowered cost of transportation, as well as the effect of the International Travel Act of 1961, contributed to an unprecedented number of tourists or visitors for pleasure. The number reached 810,779—68,000 more than last year. A fourth of the visitors came from Europe, with largest numbers from United Kingdom, Germany, France, Italy, Netherlands, and Switzerland. Most of the others came from Western Hemisphere countries, although relative increases from countries of Asia and Oceania were high. Another 117,242 persons visited the United States for business reasons.

There were 340,164 temporary workers imported in fiscal year 1962. A total of 282,556 Mexican agricultural workers were admitted under P.L. 78, as amended. Other temporary workers and laborers numbered 46,134, and included 11,420 agricultural workers from the British West Indies, 537 from other Caribbean countries, 8,462 from Canada, 354 from Japan, and 305 sheepherders from Spain. There were, in addition, 6,814 aliens of distinguished merit and ability, and 4,660 industrial trainees admitted.

The decline of 11,593 Mexican agricultural workers was primarily due to mechanization of agricultural operations, adverse weather conditions in certain portions of the United States, and the availability of domestic workers. These alien workers supplement domestic workers and are not imported unless it is determined by the Department of Labor that domestic workers are not available at prevailing wages.

Education as a means to international understanding was furthered by the admission of 41,202 students. Among them were 9,593 from Canada, 5,015 from Mexico, 3,834 from Europe, 3,203 from South America, 9,073 from Asia, 1,485 from Africa, and 671 from Oceania. The Act of September 26, 1961, authorized the admission of alien spouses and minor children of students. Under this provision 1,037 spouses and children of students were admitted.

To further international cultural exchange, the United States admitted 26,977 exchange aliens during the fiscal year 1962 to participate in both governmental and private programs. The largest groups of exchange aliens again came from Japan (2,014), Philippines (1,942), United Kingdom (1,906), Germany (1,516), and India (1,497). In addition, 3,039 spouses and children accompanied or joined the exchange aliens admitted.

There were 33,373 foreign government officials, 9,747 representatives to international organizations, 1,005 NATO officials, and 1,766 representatives of foreign information media admitted to the United States in official capacities during fiscal year 1962.

Other aliens admitted for temporary periods included 5,071 treaty traders and investors with their spouses and children, of whom 48 percent came from Japan, and 110,276 alien travelers who passed in transit through the United States.

There were 1,762,356 alien crewmen granted shore leave. Crewman landing cards were issued to 97,557 alien crewmen during fiscal year 1962, thus bringing to a total 464,206 crewman cards issued since the inception of the crewman identification card program in May 1958. These cards served to identify and facilitate the landing of bona fide crewmen.

United States Citizens. The total number of United States citizen admissions during fiscal year 1962 rose from 71,654,927 in fiscal year 1961 to 74,107,155, a 3 percent increase. Some 70 million of these were border crossers and another 860 thousand were crewmen. There was an increase from 2,043,416 to 2,199,326, or 8 percent, in the number of citizens who returned to the United States by sea and air. Most of these persons had visited European countries, the Caribbean area, and Mexico.

Refugees

Cuban Refugees. Immediately following the fall of Batista's government in Cuba on January 1, 1959, and continuing to the present, anti-Castro Cubans by the thousands have fled to the United States. With the passage of time, increasing numbers of Cubans, reaching a rate of 1,500 per week, have sought refuge in the United States. The number arriving has remained substantially unchanged. They come by common carrier, small boats, commandeered aircraft, and across the land boundary from Mexico after having made their way to that country from Cuba.

Six of 48 Chinese orphans who came to the United States by chartered plane from Hong Kong.

By the close of the fiscal year, this Service had examined 125,800 Cubans, as compared with 62,190 at the end of fiscal year 1961. At the end of June, there were 62,500 Cuban refugees on parole, 6,500 in visitor status, and 56,800 refugee overstay visitors who will be permitted to remain in the United States for an indefinite period.

Hong Kong Chinese. On May 23, 1962, the President directed that steps be taken promptly to parole into the United States several thousand Chinese from Hong Kong under section 212(d) (5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, to assist in alleviating conditions in that colony caused by the influx of persons fleeing from Communist tyranny on the mainland of China. Chinese relatives of United States citizens and resident aliens and Chinese persons possessing special skills needed in the United States are considered for parole. Before parole is authorized, these aliens must undergo comprehensive security checks, medical examinations, and other screening procedures.

Refugee-Escapees (Act of July 14, 1960). In France, Germany, Belgium, Austria, Italy, Greece, and Lebanon, Service officers continued to interview and authorize the parole of refugee-escapees under the Act of July 14, 1960. This law, scheduled to expire on June 30, 1962, was extended indefinitely by the Act of June 28, 1962. Under this "fair share" law, the United States can parole up to 25 percent of the number of eligible refugee-escapees that have availed themselves of resettlement opportunities offered by other nations. The aliens are screened before parole is authorized, to insure that their entry will not be contrary to the national welfare, safety, or security, and after two years' residence in the United States they may be granted the status of lawfully admitted permanent residents.

During fiscal year 1962, 8,852 applications were received in the various Service offices abroad and 5,132 persons were found qualified for parole. Since July 1960, 8,260 aliens have arrived in the United States. This program has demonstrated the United States interest in closing refugee camps in Western Europe and finding permanent homes for refugees and escapees from Communism.

Exclusion

Inadmissible Aliens. Aliens seeking admission to the United States must establish that they are admissible under the law. The inspection accorded them by Service officers is to permit entry to those who are legally admissible and to prevent the entry of those who are inadmissible.

As a result of the inspection accorded by Service officers of aliens seeking admission to the United States, during fiscal year 1962, 149,463 were refused entry.

Included in those not admitted were 29,059 crewmen who were refused shore leave, 79,243 prospective border crossers, and 40,542 other aliens who withdrew their applications for admission upon being advised that they appeared prima facie inadmissible. After formal hearings before a special inquiry officer, 388 aliens were excluded. Most were excluded because they attempted entry without proper documents.

Waivers of Inadmissibility. During fiscal year 1962, Congress enacted legislation (the Act of September 26, 1961) incorporating into the Immigration and Nationality Act the provisions of the Act of September 11, 1957, authorizing discretionary waivers of inadmissibility to certain close relatives of citizens and permanent resident aliens of the United States to avoid extreme hardship. This authority was favorably exercised in behalf of 1,349 excludable aliens. Of this number 1,106 were approved by the Service officers abroad.

Temporary Admissions Despite Inadmissibility. The discretion vested in the Attorney General to authorize the admission of inadmissible nonimmigrant aliens for temporary periods was exercised favorably in 3,813 cases after finding that such admission would be in the public interest.

Visa Petitions and Other Applications

Visa Petitions. Before visas may be issued to potential immigrants who claim preference within quotas or nonquota status, the United States citizen or resident alien must petition this Service in behalf of the immigrant to accord such status.

On September 26, 1961, Congress enacted legislation which made permanent heretofore temporary legislation relating to the admission of eligible orphans. The number of petitions filed under the new legislation fell off sharply from 2,857 filed in fiscal year 1961 to 1,263 filed in fiscal year 1962.

Approval of visa petitions to accord certain relatives of United States citizens and lawful resident aliens nonquota or preference quota classification dropped from 63,320 to 59,824. The largest number, 30,790 petitions, were approved to accord nonquota status to the spouses and children of United States citizens.

Approval of petitions to accord highly educated and highly skilled aliens a first preference quota classification continued at substantially the same rate as during the preceding year, with 6,329 petitions approved in 1962. Twenty-three percent of the first preference petitions were denied, reflecting the continued careful review of these cases in order to be sure that such workers will not usurp the positions of United States citizen workers.

The number of petitions approved for temporary workers and trainees also remained almost unchanged, with 12,344 petitions for such persons granted during fiscal year 1962.

Other Applications. In some instances, entry documents may be issued by this Service. Alien residents of Canada and Mexico were issued border crossing cards for temporary visits to the United States in 136,751 cases.

Lawful resident aliens of the United States may use the alien registration receipt card (Form I-151) as a travel document when returning to the United States after an absence of less than one year in countries other than those behind the iron curtain. During the year, cards to replace lost, mutilated, or obsolete cards were issued in 49,364 cases. Resident aliens who expected to be out of the United States beyond the one-year limit, or to visit an iron curtain country recognized by the United States, were issued reentry permits in 14,962 cases last year.

Applications for extension of temporary stay by visitors, students, and other aliens temporarily in the United States as nonimmigrants numbered 184,820, constituting a decrease of 4 percent from the previous year.

School transfers authorized for students and program transfers authorized for exchange aliens totaled 9,649 in fiscal year 1962, as compared with 9,834 during the prior year. Permission to accept employment was granted to 13,044 students.

Adjustment of Status

Applications for Status as Immigrant. Under certain conditions, aliens, other than crewmen and natives of contiguous countries or nearby islands, who have been inspected at a port of entry and who have been either admitted or paroled into the United States, may apply under section 245 of the Immigration and Nationality Act for status as lawful permanent residents without leaving the country to obtain immigrant visas. Since the revision of section 245 on July 14, 1960, which liberalized the conditions under which such adjustment may be made, the number of such applications filed with the Service has steadily increased. During fiscal year 1962, 15,711 aliens were granted status as permanent residents under this provision of law, an increase of 38 percent over the number granted such status in the previous year. Included among those granted lawful resident status were 5,810 spouses or minor children of United States citizens, 1,027 quota immigrants whose services were urgently needed in the United States, 451 quota immigrants who were parents, sons or daughters, or brothers or sisters of United States citizens, 625 quota immigrants who were spouses or minor children of alien residents, 2,646 nonpreference quota immigrants, and 3,600 natives of Western Hemisphere countries who do not come within the quotas.

Creation of Record of Lawful Entry. An alien who entered the United States prior to June 28, 1940, and for whom no record of lawful entry as an immigrant exists, may apply to the Service under section 249 of the Immigration and Nationality Act to have such a record created. The number of applications for the benefits of this section has been decreasing, indicating that the status of a majority of the eligible aliens has already been adjusted. Only 3,399 applications were granted during fiscal year 1962, a decrease of 33 percent from the number granted during the preceding year.

Other Adjustments. Congress approved the suspension of deportation of 124 aliens under section 244 of the Immigration and Nationality Act for aliens whose deportation would have created extreme hardship for citizen families, and gave immigrant status to 80 persons through private laws. Fifty-one Hungarian refugees who were paroled into the United States became permanent residents through adjustment of status, after having fulfilled the two-year residence requirement. Thirty others were adjusted under various provisions of law.

Service Operations Outside the United States

In addition to processing aliens for parole as refugees in Europe and Hong Kong, and preinspection in the Bahamas, Bermuda, and Canada, Service officers abroad have continued to process waivers of inadmissibility submitted by immigrant visa applicants who are close relatives of citizens and permanent resident aliens of the United States. They also were instrumental in facilitating international travel, as well as assisting United States citizens and resident aliens abroad, by adjudicating various petitions and applications rather than having such cases referred to offices in the United States. Fraud, misrepresentation, and other violations of the immigration law were discovered and prevented by Service officers abroad, including cases involving fraudulent or counterfeit documents, unqualified beneficiaries of petitions for preferences, unqualified and unsuitable orphans adopted or to be adopted, mala fide crewmen, stowaways, and smuggling.

BORDER PATROL AND INVESTIGATION

Deportable Aliens Located

Service officers located 92,758 aliens amenable to deportation proceedings for reasons varying from illegal entry or failure to maintain lawful nonimmigrant status to convictions of felonies or other crimes. Among them were 58,265 aliens who had been admitted as visitors, students, and other nonimmigrants; 2,520 agricultural workers; 1,016 immigrants; 2,492 crewmen who willfully violated their status; 11,718 crewmen whose violations were technical in that their vessels had remained in port beyond the 29-day limit; 177 stowaways; and 16,570 illegal entrants.

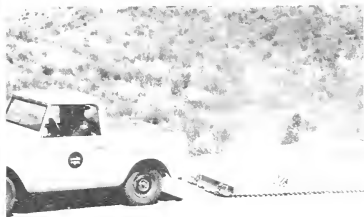

There have been drastic changes in the nationalities of the deportable aliens found since 1954, when over 99 percent were of Mexican nationality. In fiscal year 1962, Mexican aliens represented less than a third of the total. Canadian aliens averaged 8 percent of the total. Marked increases are noted in the apprehensions of aliens from other Western Hemisphere countries and of those of the Chinese race.

The number of aliens who entered surreptitiously, either across the land borders or by sea, has not changed materially in the past three years. It appears that a plateau has been reached which will vary but little from year to year in the absence of radical changes in the factors which affect border violations.

Decreased illegal entries were accompanied by substantial increases in the number of those legally admitted who violated status. Principal increases were in the visitor and other nonimmigrant categories. (See chart.)

Efforts to prevent crewman desertions and the entry of stowaways brought about some concrete results. Wilful crewman violators located dropped from 2,634 in 1961 to 2,492 in 1962. The number of stowaways found (177) was a decrease of 17 percent since last year.

Smuggling, however, was on the increase. In the southern border areas and along the Gulf and Florida Coasts, 349 smugglers and 545 smuggled aliens were apprehended. In attempting to evade the continued tight control of the border areas, new tactics were used. For example, two smugglers who were apprehended last September near Alamogordo, New Mexico,

More than 1,100 miles of drag trails (land clearings paralleling borders, so constructed that tracks will be left by persons crossing them) were continually patrolled.

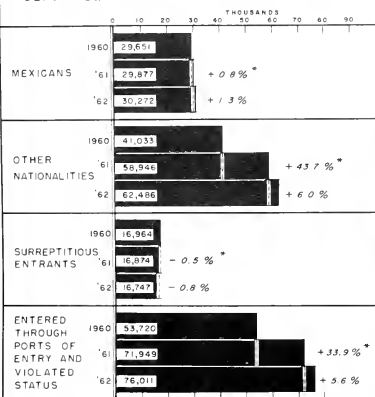

were transporting 27 aliens to Colorado. All 27 had been induced to enter as nonimmigrants, without disclosing the true purpose of their entry. The smugglers were charged with inducing aliens to enter illegally and with unlawful transportation. In two cases in April 1962, smuggled aliens were concealed under the hoods of automobiles.

Previous Annual Reports have referred to the case of Reverend Henry T. Jordan, a procurer of false Canadian documents, who was prosecuted on four counts of alien smuggling. His trial ended nearly two and one-half years of painstaking inquiry by Service and Canadian officers. On June 29, 1962, Jordan was convicted by a jury and sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

In the coastal and Great Lakes areas, efforts were intensified to control crewmen, stowaways, and smugglers. Crewman control operations included surveillance of mala fide crewmen and alien stowaways who had been ordered detained on board. For example, during the 1961 shipping season on the Great Lakes, 1,075 such crewmen were checked out on departure on 263 ocean-going vessels. A number of these aliens later deserted in Canada. Frequently, crewman control activities were coordinated with investigative search operations. Upon receiving reports of crewman desertions, mobile units were dispatched to the scene of desertion, where immediate investigation provided leads, background information, and intelligence data. Other units simultaneously covered transportation terminals and crewman hangouts. At the port of Norfolk, Virginia, alone, 66 crewmen attempting to desert were promptly apprehended and removed from the United States on the vessels on which they arrived.

Development of informants for locating deportable aliens, preventing crewman desertions, and the uncovering of stowaway and smuggling activities met with marked success. The information gained from this program resulted in the apprehension of deserting crewmen and other illegal aliens; the identification and discovering of stowaways, smugglers, and smuggling rings; the location of hitherto unknown hiding places of stowaways aboard certain vessels; and the obtaining of information of value to the Narcotics Bureau and other agencies.

In one interesting case, the coordinated efforts of the Palermo overseas office and the New York Smuggling Unit resulted in the cracking of an Italian smuggling ring and apprehension of eight persons involved. Following the location of three Italian stowaways on a pier in Brooklyn around midnight, September 24, 1961, a suspicious bystander, Mr. "R", was found outside the pier apparently waiting to take delivery of the stowaways. Extensive ship-board investigation identified the crewman smuggler who had assisted the stowaways. The stowaways and smuggler were prosecuted, convicted, and deported from the United States on January 27, 1962. Mr. "R", who was already under deportation proceedings, was deported to Italy. Subsequent inquiry on the part of the Palermo overseas office unearthed valuable information concerning the workings of the smuggling ring in Italy, including the fact that the same smugglers had landed a group of Italian stowaways a few months earlier from the same vessel. Acting on this information, the New York office effected the apprehension of four additional stowaways in whose cases prosecution and deportation proceedings have been instituted.

Caribbean Program and Problems

Investigations of Cubans of the subversive class among purported refugees were carried on throughout the year. Pressure of these investigations resulted in the departure from the United States of a number of Cuban subversives while the investigations were still in progress. These included Jose Manuel Sanchez-Diaz, the leader of the pro-Castro July 26 Movement in New York, and Efraim Trujillo-Fernandez, who had been the national treasurer of the July 26 Movement. Celestino Fernandez-Suarez was excluded from the United States on May 16, 1962, after extensive Service investigation had established that he was not a bona fide defector from the Communist Party of the Castro regime as he had claimed. Investigation disclosed his long record as a Communist functionary, including training in the Soviet Union during the 1930's and his leadership of the Communist Party of Cuba from 1934 to 1945. More recently, Fernandez-Suarez attended the World Youth Festival at Vienna, Austria, as a Cuban delegate and visited in Moscow with his son, an officer of the Soviet Army.

In August 1961, officers were assigned to ride on certain scheduled domestic airline flights to prevent hijacking. This action stemmed from a directive issued on August 10, 1961, by the President, after a Continental Airlines jet airplane had been disabled by Service officers to prevent its being flown to Cuba.

Foreign-Born Law Violators

Internal Security and the Foreign Born. Countering the problems of security and subversion presented by Cuba and the restless Caribbean area was but one phase of the total continuing program of deportation, exclusion, and denaturalization of alien subversives. In the Southwest the collected intelligence information resulted in the exclusion of a number of important Mexican subversives. Among them were a Mexican attorney and Government official, a federal school teacher, and a writer.

Continued investigative efforts culminated in the institution of deportation proceedings against a number of aliens of the subversive class during the year. Among the more prominent was Nydia Luthy, who had been deported in 1951 on subversive grounds, and excluded on the same basis in 1959. She was located and arrested in Findlay, Ohio, on May 14, 1962, following protracted investigation. Prosecution and deportation proceedings were instituted and, on August 2, 1962, the Board of Immigration Appeals dismissed her appeal from the deportation order entered by a special inquiry officer. Yip Hen Seung and Fang Gar Seung, of San Francisco, who had been posing as United States citizens, also were exposed as frauds and placed under deportation proceedings.

Foreign-born of Criminal Classes. The international character of cases involving organized racketeering, vice, and narcotics traffic, makes this type of investigation most important. The potent weapons of exclusion, deportation, denaturalization, and prosecution are utilized to obstruct, eliminate, prevent, and hinder the flow of illegal traffic by criminals over the coastal and land boundaries of the nation.

A typical case is that of Ernesto Barese, an associate of the late Lucky Luciano. He was considered to be a courier and arranger for narcotics traffic between the United States and Italy. Deported in 1955 on criminal charges, Barese was arrested in 1957 when found, again, in the United States. When deported in 1960, he clandestinely left the flight, which was returning him to Italy, in Bermuda and went to Canada. On June 12, 1962, he again was apprehended. His deportation is being withheld pending disposition of criminal charge of illegal reentry after deportation.

Salvatore Maneri, another alien suspected of being deep in international narcotics traffic, jumped a $5,000 immigration bond and a $10,000 court bond for narcotics conspiracy and fled to Spain, thereby executing an outstanding deportation warrant. Upon extradition from Spain, he was paroled into the United States on February 2, 1962, to stand trial for conspiracy to smuggle narcotics. Maneri was previously deported on three occasions.

Border criminal identification programs include the compilation of information on notorious criminals in adjacent countries and the continued close liaison between Service investigators and responsible law enforcement officials on both sides of the borders. The following cases are examples of the effectiveness of the programs. Louis Harold Kendler, one of Canada's most notorious criminals, was apprehended by Service investigators on March 6, 1962, in Los Angeles, California, where he was employed as chief accountant for a large corporation. He had concealed a criminal record in Canada, which included convictions and prison terms for forgery and passing worthless checks. He was deported to Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, on March 16, 1962, and turned over to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who wanted him on forgery charges.

Kenneth Lorne Turner, a Canadian citizen, was wanted by Windsor, Ontario, police for armed robbery. He had engaged in a gun battle with police officers on April 16, 1962. Service investigators found him on the same day in Detroit, where he was suffering from gunshot wounds. Since he had been previously deported from the United States, the order was reinstated and he was deported to Canada to the custody of Windsor police on April 25, 1962.

Lookouts posted for aliens of criminal, immoral, and narcotic classes have resulted in the rejection of many aliens seeking entry and the speedy location of others who were in the United States.

Frauds. Numerous schemes to circumvent the immigration laws were exposed as a result of the completion of 3,931 immigration fraud investigations in 1962. Many frauds perpetrated involved using, or obtaining, false visas or documents necessary to support the issuance of a visa. Also, as in Chinese fraud cases, extensive use has been made by aliens of false identities and relationships to falsely claim United States citizenship. Other cases have involved sham marriages to United States citizens to evade quota restrictions. Examples of the marked success of these highly complex investigations follow.

Investigations of the V and B Travel Agencies disclosed that the agencies had jointly submitted a great number of illegal first preference petitions. Various businessmen were used as fronts to sign the documents and clearances required. The travel agencies executed the documents with false statements as to the nature of the business, the urgent need for the services of the aliens, the duties required to be performed, illegal notarizations, etc. As a result of voluminous evidence and testimony to support fraud charges, a special grand jury was convened on April 26, 1962, in New York. To date, 92 witnesses have or are scheduled to appear before the grand jury. Significantly, since the investigation began, the filing of petitions by these travel agencies has fallen from approximately 500 a year to a mere trickle.

Jose A. Espinosa, a self-styled immigrant consultant was convicted for violation of 18 U.S.C. 2 and 18 U.S.C. 1001. Espinosa was convicted for aiding and abetting aliens in making false statements in applications for extensions of stay and requests for voluntary departure. Subsequent to conviction, Espinosa himself was placed under deportation proceedings.

The three-year investigation of a West Indies marriage fraud ring was successfully concluded recently at New York, where the last three defendants pleaded guilty to various charges and were sentenced on February 6, 1962. The fraud ring had arranged sham marriages between United States citizens and aliens from the West Indies to allow the aliens' entry into the United States for permanent residence. Thirty-two fraudulent marriages were exposed by the investigation and 13 defendants were convicted. Following the prosecutions, approximately 40 aliens were placed under deportation proceedings and required to depart from the United States.

Since April 15, 1958, Service officers and American consuls have forwarded to the Fraudulent Document Center at El Paso, Texas, 6,822 cases in which it was established that a Mexican alien had presented a document in support of a false claim to American citizenship. During fiscal year 1962, 902 new cases were added to the files, 1,332 inquiries were received, and positive responses were made in 11 percent of these cases, an increase from last year's 9.2 percent. Cases stored at the Document Center undergo searching analysis so that trends and patterns may be identified and new combative measures developed.

In the course of Chinese fraud investigations during the year, 1,419 persons confessed to having fraudulently entered the United States. Their confessions exposed 3,003 Chinese persons who entered in the same manner and made 1,391 "slots" unavailable for use.

Original Gravestone.

In one Chinese fraud investigation, a visit to the 21-year-old grave site of an alleged paternal grandfather led to the uncovering of fraudulent identities of a group of Chinese. A new headstone had been prepared for the grave with altered spelling of the name, but investigators also located the old gravestone which bore the authentic name of the alleged grandparent in Chinese lettering.

Criminal Prosecution

The Service presented 6,294 cases to United States Attorneys for violation of the immigration and nationality laws; 2,811 prosecutions were authorized. Of the cases disposed of, 89 percent resulted in convictions with aggregate sentences of 32,007 months and fines of $273,160.

In 1,547 cases convictions were for reentry after deportation without permission (8 U.S.C. 1326); 183 persons were convicted for document frauds (18 U.S.C. 1546). The average sentence in these cases was 14 months. There were 173 persons convicted for nationality violations, and of these convictions 165 cases were for false representations as United States citizens (18 U.S.C. 911).

Revocation of Naturalization

Revocation of naturalization was ordered in 4 cases; 9 revocation suits were pending at the end of the year—1 subversive, 4 criminal, and 4 other cases.

After extensive investigation and litigation, the naturalization of John "Bath Beach" Oddo was revoked by the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York, on April 9, 1962. Oddo was born in Italy on January 4, 1903, entered the United States in 1907, and was naturalized on December 1, 1931. In amassing a record of 36 arrests from 1919 to date, Oddo became one of the more notorious racketeers in the country and the denaturalization order is based on his failure to reveal his criminal record at the time of his naturalization. Oddo has filed notice of appeal to the Court of Appeals.

EXCLUSION AND EXPULSION PROCEEDINGS

During fiscal year 1962, 1,010 exclusion hearings were completed, representing a 61 percent decrease from 1961. A total of 10,431 deportation hearings were held before special inquiry officers. In 8,873 cases, 85 percent, deportability was conceded by the aliens concerned. With respect to the hearings conducted by special inquiry officers, 607 appeals were received by the Board of Immigration Appeals during fiscal year 1962, representing 5 percent of the total hearings, both exclusion and deportation, completed during that year.

The decrease, 27 percent, in hearings completed is attributable mainly to a change in procedures affecting Cuban refugees, whereby such aliens are paroled into the United States in lieu of hearing referrals to special inquiry officers in all but limited classes of cases.

A significant change in Service procedures made in January 1962, affects the scope of expulsion hearings conducted by special inquiry officers. Service administrative procedures were integrated to carry out one of the aims of the new section 106, Immigration and Nationality Act (P.L. 87-301), i.e., the reduction in the number of judicial reviews available in an individual case.

Under those regulations, special inquiry officers were vested with additional authority to determine matters affecting the place of deportation of aliens under expulsion proceedings, claims of physical persecution if deported to particular countries, applications for adjustment of status and acquisition of permanent residence status under section 245 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, and applications for adjustment of status and creation of a record of lawful admission for permanent residence under section 249 of the Act, as an integral part of an expulsion hearing.

DETENTION AND DEPORTATION ACTIVITIES

A total of 7,637 aliens were deported from the United States. In addition, 51,164 aliens were required to depart without the issuance of a formal order of deportation. Included in the number of aliens deported were 682 under criminal, immoral, or narcotic charges. Among them were Simone Scozzari, who had been in attendance at the notorious meeting of racketeers at Apalachin, New York, in 1957; Michele Abati, named in the Kefauver Committee hearings as an associate of known criminals; and Elizabeth Spedding, alleged to be one of the biggest operators in the call-girl racket. Seven subversive aliens were deported—two on subversive charges—the others had subversive backgrounds but were deported on other charges. Among those deported were Harry Carlisle, former editor-in-chief of "Western Worker"; Diamond Kimm, editor of the "Korean Independence", who invoked the Fifth Amendment when questioned concerning his Communist affiliation (he was accompanied by his common law wife Fania Goorwitch); and Willie Hirsch, who had been arrested on espionage charges, on October 17, 1960.

One hundred eighty-two aliens who had fallen into distress were removed from the United States at their request to their home countries.

Sixty-four mentally incompetent aliens were deported or removed. The aliens involved had already cost local governments over two hundred thousand dollars, and, had they continued to be institutionalized in the United States for their normal life span, over three million dollars in public funds would have had to be expended for their maintenance and treatment.

There were 21,505 aliens admitted to Service detention facilities and 13,007 to non-Service facilities. The Service detention facility at McAllen, Texas, was closed and a new, up-to-date facility opened at Port Isabel, Texas. To temporarily house Cubans being processed for entry into the United States, a new facility was opened at Opa Locka, Florida, with an auxiliary unit at Tampa, Florida, for the detention of those cases in which release in the United States is not feasible without extensive investigation.

LEGAL ACTIVITIES

The fiscal year witnessed a major change in the traditional formulas of judicial review of immigration orders. Section 5 of the Act of September 26, 1961, P.L. 87-301, eliminated the district court review of exclusion and deportation orders previously allowed under the Administrative Procedure Act. It provided that final orders of exclusion could thereafter be reviewed only by habeas corpus. It also provided for direct review of final orders of deportation exclusively by the courts of appeals, although it expressly safeguarded the right of habeas corpus for aliens in custody under such orders. The interpretation of the new law is still in its infancy, but a number of decisions already have explored its coverage. The United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit has read the statute quite expansively in Blagait v. INS and Roumeliotis v. INS, holding it applicable respectively to review of the denial of physical persecution claim and of a visa petition. The Ninth Circuit appears to have indicated a more limited view in Giora v. Rosenberg, finding jurisdiction lacking to review a denial of a motion to reopen deportation proceedings where no review of the final order of deportation was sought.

At the close of the fiscal year, there had been 83 original review petitions filed in the various courts of appeals and there had been 43 unheard suits pending in the district courts transferred to the courts of appeals having jurisdiction over them. Of the total of 126 suits, 31 suits were disposed of by June 30, 1962.

In the Supreme Court, litigation involving or directly affecting the Service was exceptionally light. The Court accepted for argument only two cases. Of these, only Rusk v. Cort, 369 U.S. 367, was decided, and it was held that a citizenship claimant outside the United States could maintain a suit to establish his claim under the general Declaratory Judgment Act, 28 U.S.C. 2201. The Cort case also presented a challenge to the constitutionality of the statutory provisions on loss of citizenship by evaders of military service. This case was set down for reargument together with the similar case of Kennedy v. Mendoza-Martinez. Also of interest is the Supreme Court's failure to act before its summer recess on a petition for certiorari filed October 27, 1961 in Gustelum-Quinones v. Kennedy, a case challenging the constitutionality of the statute and the adequacy of the proof underlying a deportation order against an alien formerly a member of the Communist Party.

No petitions for certiorari were filed in the Supreme Court on behalf of the Government in Service cases during fiscal 1962. There were 19 petitions filed by aliens. One petition was carried over from the prior fiscal year. Of these 20 petitions, one was granted on suggestion of the Solicitor General, resulting in a reversal of the lower court and a remand of the case for further administrative proceedings. Two petitions remained unacted upon by the court at the end of the fiscal year. The remaining 17 petitions were denied.

ALIEN ADDRESS REPORTS

In accordance with the requirements of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 3,128,765 aliens filed address report cards with the Service in 1962. This is an increase of 90,461 reports over last year. The three states with the largest number of aliens reporting were: California—660,418 or 21 percent; New York—574,637 or 18.4 percent; and Texas—237,749 or 7.6 percent. The largest number of resident aliens were of Mexican nationality (549,070), followed by Canada (326,238), Germany (255,903), United Kingdom (250,784), Italy (234,229), and Poland (135,576). Residents of other nationalities were under one hundred thousand. The largest number of Mexican nationals live in California and Texas; Canadians in California and New York; Germans in New York and California; British in New York and California; Italians in New York and New Jersey; and Poles in New York and Illinois.

CITIZENSHIP

Encouragement of Naturalization

Informational Programs. Administrative responsibility cannot be properly served without effective programs publicizing the requirements for naturalization, and realistically describing and explaining applicable procedures. The primary effect of such programs is to assure every qualified alien the opportunity to proceed with naturalization within a short time of attaining eligibility. Secondly, programs of this type eliminate misconceptions many aliens have regarding the nature of the administrative and judicial naturalization processes.

A common misconception among aliens potentially qualified for naturalization is the erroneous impression that the desired goal is beyond their capacity. To combat these unwarranted misapprehensions, the Service supplemented the distribution of pamphlets describing the naturalization prerequisites and procedures with motion picture films. These films take the alien behind the scenes and afford him an opportunity to actually view a naturalization proceeding and become familiar with the nature of the examination and tests he will be required to take. Each viewer is thus enabled to evaluate his own qualifications for naturalization upon a sound basis, and develop a self-confidence in his ability to qualify.

The Service practice of promptly notifying newly naturalized persons by mail of their children's eligibility for naturalization continued during the past fiscal year. Before this program was conceived, a great majority of naturalized persons either failed to apply in behalf of their children, or delayed their applications until the children were too old to qualify under the statute.

A second notification program is designed to notify the newly naturalized citizens that, through their naturalization, their children automatically derived citizenship and became eligible to apply for a certificate of citizenship. This notification program benefits the derivative citizen since it tends to promote an early adjudication of the citizenship claim, when the required documentary evidence and testimony is readily available, thus avoiding complications in proof which sometimes result from the passage of time.

Citizenship Responsibility. Citizenship Day and Constitution Week, designed to inspire in all citizens a rededication to the social and political ideals of the nation, were once again celebrated throughout the country. The Service-published Citizenship Day Bulletin was widely used as a practical guide for planning appropriate ceremonies and ensuring a maximum of participation therein.

Working with the courts and civic and patriotic organizations, the Service was instrumental in arranging for impressive final naturalization ceremonies, that made candidates for citizenship aware of the necessity for a full acceptance of the duties and obligations as well as the rights and privileges of their status.

Citizenship Instruction. Related to the fulfillment of citizenship responsibility are the general statutory requirements that the candidate for citizenship possess an ability to speak, understand, read, and write the English language, be familiar with this country's history, have a practical understanding of the constitutional prerogatives, and a fair working knowledge of the Government in operation. During fiscal year 1962, the Service continued its effective citizenship education programs formulated to assist naturalization applicants in their preparation to meet these educational prerequisites.

Names and addresses of newly arrived immigrants were furnished local schools so that these aliens might be invited to attend citizenship classes. For the purpose of extending similar invitations, public schools were furnished the names and addresses of 52,359 applicants for naturalization. Among the aliens admitted to citizenship during the past year, 37,560 attended public school courses and 2,417 gained instruction through home study courses. A total of 205,893 copies of the various parts of the "Federal Textbook on Citizenship" were distributed to candidates for citizenship, either through the public schools or the Government Printing Office.

Three generations of a Chinese family being sworn in as United States citizens in the chambers of a Federal District Judge.

Naturalization Courts

A cooperative relationship between the Service and the naturalization courts, established by the closest liaison between Service representatives and court personnel, has long been an important factor contributing to efficient operation in the naturalization area. An example of this was seen in the uniform consent of courts to Service requests for special final hearings to facilitate the travel abroad of military personnel and their dependents, or of other resident aliens departing from the United States in connection with important Government projects.

The harmonious atmosphere surrounding the relations between the Service and the naturalization courts in 1962 permitted further progress to be made in the court consolidation program. An increased concentration of alien population in certain areas, disclosed by Service survey, prompted a reactivation of a number of courts. Nevertheless, the active federal and state courts engaged in the naturalization activity were further reduced from 662 to 639.

The concentration of naturalization work in the larger courts permits more frequent filing periods which, in turn, results in additional final hearings and a consequent early disposition of cases. By increasing the number of naturalization candidates to a maximum at each final hearing, a better setting is provided for more impressive ceremonies, with a fuller participation by civic and patriotic organizations.

Naturalization Petitions

Petitions Granted. Currency and quality in naturalization case work, which have become trademarks of Service accomplishment during recent years, were again realized during fiscal year 1962.

The substantial total of 127,307 aliens were admitted to United States citizenship during the fiscal year. While this number represents a decrease from the extraordinarily high figure of 1961, reached as a result of the Invitation-to-File Program, it is greater by seven thousand than the number of persons naturalized in any other one year since 1957. There were 98,739 petitions granted under the general provisions of the law. Under special provisions, 17,379 persons were naturalized as the spouses of citizens, and 8,723 as the children of citizens. The remaining 2,466 petitions included 2,335 filed by persons who were granted citizenship based upon a period of military service.

Seventy-one percent of the newly naturalized persons formerly owed allegiance to the following countries: Germany (18,568), Italy (17,419), United Kingdom (9,696), Canada (9,272), Mexico (7,205), Greece (6,092), Hungary (5,682), Poland (5,362), China (4,109), Japan (3,563), and Ireland (3,507).

More than one-half of the children naturalized during the fiscal year came from only four countries: Germany, Greece, Italy, and Korea, once again reflecting the very considerable extent to which orphans have been adopted by United States citizens. It is also interesting to note that the great bulk of persons naturalized based upon marriage to a citizen spouse were formerly nationals of Germany, Japan, United Kingdom, Italy, and Canada, countries in which many United States citizens have been stationed on military or civilian assignment.

Petitions Denied. Despite the slight decrease in volume of naturalization during the fiscal year, 3,557 petitioners were denied citizenship during the period, an increase of 12 percent over the figure of a year ago. Of those denied, 1,394 petitions were voluntarily withdrawn when it was clear that the statutory requirements for naturalization could not be met at the time. Another large group of 910 petitions was denied because the petitioners failed to prosecute their cases to completion. Many of these denials and withdrawals involved petitioners who could not meet the educational requirements and required more time for study.

Literacy deficiency accounted for 103 denials, compared with 141 denied on that basis in the preceding year. The number of petitions denied because the petitioner lacked the necessary knowledge of the history and government of the United States increased greatly for the second consecutive year. There were 847 denials in this category, compared to 434 last year. The increase is again attributable to persons of advanced age who filed petitions in response to the Invitation-to-File Program and who have no exemption from the statutory requirement.

A considerable number of petitioners who withdrew qualified for naturalization at a later date by the removal of the impediment which barred the earlier naturalization.

Derivative Citizenship

The issuance of certificates of citizenship, after hearing, was another major area of Service responsibility during fiscal year 1962. Ordinarily, a by-product of diminished naturalization activity is a decreased number of derivative citizenship cases. Notwithstanding this generally accepted hypothesis, the record for 1962 discloses that 31,589 certificates of citizenship were issued, a 2 percent increase over the extremely high figure for 1961. Of these, 14,037 certificates were issued to persons who acquired citizenship at birth abroad to citizen parents. The remaining 17,532 certificates were issued to former aliens who derived citizenship subsequent to birth, either through the naturalization of their parents or through marriage to United States citizens.

The continued foreign assignments of servicemen have resulted in the birth abroad of many children qualified to receive certificates of citizenship. When brought to this country, practically all these children reside with their parents at military bases. Applications and necessary information were furnished the authorities at many military bases, and arrangements were made to conduct the proceedings, including the immediate delivery of the certificates, at the bases, rather than at a Service field office. Since a large number of cases was invariably processed and completed at one time, it frequently was possible to arrange for significant ceremonies as a setting for the delivery of the certificates.

The births of children who became citizens at birth abroad to citizen parents are frequently registered at an American consulate. If the documentation presented to the consular authorities is sufficient in form and substance for the derivative certificate, it is utilized in connection with the case and the applicant relieved of presenting duplicate documentation.

Loss of Citizenship

During the past fiscal year, 3,226 persons were reported as having lost their United States citizenship under the expatriation provisions of the statute. A breakdown of this total discloses that of these former citizens, 977 underwent expatriation by voting in a foreign election, 1,113 as a result of extended foreign residence, and 642 through naturalization in a foreign state. Persons expatriated by reason of a renunciation of citizenship or the taking of an oath of allegiance to a foreign state totaled 229. Citizenship was also lost by 237 other former citizens through service in the armed forces of or employment by a foreign state. The other miscellaneous grounds of expatriation accounted for the remaining 28 expatriates. Loss of nationality in all these cases occurred automatically by operation of the statute.

Orders of naturalization revoked and certificates cancelled by court action during the past fiscal year totaled 26, compared with the 44 cases in 1961. As usual, the principal ground for revocation was a resumption of foreign residence by the naturalized persons within the five-year period following their admissions to citizenship which, under the statute, gives rise to a presumption that they lacked the requisite intention to reside permanently in the United States.

On occasion, persons claiming citizenship through citizen parents or marriage to citizens will commit fraud or engage in misrepresentation when they appear for the administrative hearings in connection with their applications for certificates of citizenship. As a result, they will obtain certificates from the Service to which they are not entitled under the law. In accordance with authority contained in the statute, 424 certificates in this category, administratively issued during the past years, were administratively cancelled during 1962.

Under a statute which ceased to be effective September 22, 1922, citizen women lost their nationality upon marriage to aliens. Most of the 409 persons regaining United States citizenship during the year were women in this category.

ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

Employee Development and Training

The principal Service-wide training activities were centralized at Port Isabel, Texas. A new Student practicing speaking Spanish in language laboratory at Officer Development Center.

Officer Development Center was established which includes the Border Patrol Academy, the Advanced Officers College, and Extension Training. The Border Patrol Academy conducts the fourteen-week program of instruction for new incoming Patrol Inspector officer trainees. A total of 133 trainees completed this program in fiscal year 1962. Twelve different courses, some of which were scheduled two and three times, were conducted at the Advanced Officers College. Seven of these courses were specifically designed to provide technical training need by journeyman investigator, deportation officer, and immigrant inspector personnel as well as naturalization examiners. Two hundred and ninety-two officers completed these courses. In addition, three supervisory courses for investigators, immigrant inspectors and patrol inspectors were presented. One hundred and thirty-three supervisors completed these courses during the fiscal year 1962.

A new developmental opportunity was provided for executives in the Service in the form of an Executive Development Seminar. Participants gained a better understanding of the nature of important management processes such as planning, controlling, coordinating, directing and organizing; as well as human relations, decision making, and delegation. Twenty persons attended the one-week program and nineteen attended the two-week one.

The Service's Extension Training Program consists of nine home-study courses that cover the Service's key functional activities. Employees enrolled in this program completed a total of 909 courses during the fiscal year.

Training effectiveness has been improved among those officers who serve as instructors at the Officer Development Center and elsewhere. Twenty-four of these officers attended an intensive two-week Instruction Training Course during fiscal year 1962.

The I&NS Employee Development and Training Advisory Board, comprised of Assistant Commissioners, was established to provide over-all guidance and direction of employee development and training activities. As a result of the Board's action, greater coordination, understanding, and cooperation were achieved among personnel engaged in planning and implementing in-Service programs of instruction. In addition, better control measures were designed and used, resulting in less wasted effort and time on the part of personnel concerned with training problems and programs.

Other Administrative Services

The Management Improvement Program covered a wide variety of improvements in Service operations. A booklet-type Reentry Permit, containing pages for visas, simplified the documentation for travel for permanent residents of the United States. A new multipurpose form for foreign students was devised, which replaced a number of forms and procedures for the student, the Service, and the school authorities. A few projects that effected savings last year were: the record-keeping procedure involved in the admission of students who do not have proper documents in their possession was simplified at Miami; surveys of manpower and travel patterns resulted in savings in a number of districts; other work simplification included the installation of a telephone-answering service, which relieved duty officers, and public address systems where effective.

The Personnel Branch assisted in the establishment of a new district and its headquarters at Port Isabel, Texas, and the Officer Development Center located there; in the employee development and training programs; in the training of foreign officials; and in the long-range planning and coordination of in-Service training courses. The Branch conducted and completed an evaluation of the Personnel Programs in the Northeast, Southwest, and Southeast Regions, and published the I&N Reporter. There were 9,177 applications rated by the Board of Examiners and 221 selections were made for immigration patrol inspector positions.

Under the Incentive Awards Program 844 suggestions were received—104 were adopted; 199 persons were recognized for superior performance or special acts. Cash awards totaling $45,147 were granted to Service employees.

The Finance Branch extensively revised the accounting system to bring it into conformity with the principles, standards, and related requirements as prescribed by the Comptroller General. This revision includes a realignment of the chart of accounts, an improved provision for interlocking accounting relationships between the Central Office and the regional offices, modifications and refinements in the method of maintaining the accounts on an accrual basis, and other procedural modifications.

The Property Management and Office Services Branch procured and supervised the complex installation of sixty mechanical index machines of the latest design to house an ultimate 38 million cards in the Central Office Master Index. Another accomplishment of interest was the conversion of a procedure involving panel boards to an automated sequential card system. This latter method resulted in faster publication time, increased "readability," and monetary savings.

In fiscal year 1962, to improve the controls and servicing of records and files, a major project of purging obsolete index cards in field offices was started by the Records Administration and Information Branch. In addition to gaining needed space in field office indexes, the purge will result in faster index searches and more positive identification of subjects of related records.

A publicity program was conducted to assure that the annual alien address report requirements were brought to the attention of all aliens who must submit the reports.

The program to provide better facilities for port formalities and Border Patrol operations was continued. Contracts were awarded in cooperation with the Bureau of Customs for construction of seven border inspection stations with two residences each. Six Border Patrol stations, one sector headquarters, and three border inspection stations were completed during the fiscal year. New inspection facilities were installed at four international airports.

Some of the principal accomplishments in the Statistics Branch were a handbook for statistical coding, a plan for a uniform method of measuring work efficiency on adjudications, a comprehensive study of the development of certain principles in immigration law over the past 37 years, and other analytical reports relating to proposed legislation and its effect on the Service programs.

TABLE 13. IMMIGRATION BY COUNTRY, FOR DECADES:
1820 - 1962 1/

From 1820 to 1867 figures represent alien passengers arrived; 1868 to 1891 inclusive and 1895 to 1897 inclusive, immigrant aliens arrived; 1892 to 1894 inclusive and from 1898 to present time immigrant aliens admitted. Data for years prior to 1906 relate to country whence alien came; thereafter to country of last permanent residence. Because of changes in boundaries and changes in lists of countries, data for certain countries are not comparable throughout.
